

BIGOS

The Ultimate Checklist for Getting Your Deposit Back

When you rent an apartment, you are generally asked to put down a deposit to cover any damages, faults, etc. when you sign your lease. This is often the same amount as rent, or some amount that has been configured to cover such things. The deposit is intended to be returned upon lease-end, or when you move out, but sometimes that isn't always the case. Here is the ultimate checklist to make sure you do indeed get that deposit back!

- Read & Understand Your Lease
- Pre and Post Move-In Inspections
- Notify Your Landlord
- Make Simple Repairs Yourself
- Deep Clean Your Rental Unit
- Know Your State Rules & Laws
- Follow Up with the Landlord
- Demand Letter

